Who has not, when a child, read the thrilling detective tales of "Nick Carter"? The Bites presents a picture to-day, based on some of the best of these stories, and it makes one of the most interesting dramas of the year. Watch has a new song, "I Want a Girl from Yankee Doodle Town." "Yachting on the Baltic" is an interesting travel picture. "Two Little Tartans" are just what the name implies. Some fun in it. Three other good pictures to-night.

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. In Him was life and the light was the life of man." Powerful is the influence of the Word of God, and various are the ways it has been promulgated. Even the sinner has been made to hear witness of the Word, for the Savior said, despite the murmurings of the Pharisees and Scribes, "They shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons." From "The Convert," a Biography to-day at Dreamland.
